Livermore's Chief of Police will offer examples of how the local communities are the front lines in the fight against terrorism at home. Find out what you can do every day to make our community and our country safe. By getting our community members involved we can make Livermore a harder target for terrorists. The Chief will also focus on what the LPD is doing to prevent terrorism, what kind of threat we have here, and how the LPD is working with the Lab and other institutions. In addition, we will discuss where we are now compared to 2001 and what progress has been made.
